MainStream Selected as Appian Value Added Service Provider
MainStream Teams with Appian to provide Business Process Management Solutions

BETHESDA, MD (February 22, 2013) – MainStream Global Solutions, LLC ("MainStream"), a global management-consulting firm, announced a strategic alliance with Appian Corporation ("Appian"), the leading provider of innovative Business Process Management (BPM) software. As an Appian Value Added Service Provider (VASP), MainStream will be providing BPM consulting to Appian customers across public sector and commercial enterprises. MainStream's management consultants will have direct access to specialized Appian training and support to benefit customers in their implementation of Appian business process solutions. Appian's comprehensive integrated suite of BPM solutions include enterprise process management, data navigation, native mobile access, and a no-training interface for social collaboration. Currently, more than 3.5 million users leverage Appian's BPM software to manage their mission-critical business processes, including many existing MainStream customers.

"Appian's growth in the marketplace has been dramatic and many of our current customers are already Appian clients. This agreement enables MainStream to enhance the way we work with our customers to help them increase performance and sustain gains. Moreover, new customers will benefit from the tight linkage with MainStream and Appian as they tackle current and future BPM challenges," said MainStream GS President, Alan J. Horowitz.

"We are very pleased to have MainStream as an Appian Value Added Service Provider. MainStream's deep experience in BPM consulting will make them a strong partner in ensuring the BPM success of our joint customers," said Matt Calkins, President and CEO of Appian.
